

Additional YDSP 2009-10 Projects

On 14 April 2010, the Minister for Youth, Kate Ellis announced additional funding of $700,000 to support organisations across the country to help provide positive development opportunities for young Australians.

This follows the overwhelming response to the earlier call for proposals from organisations keen to engage with and support young people in their local communities.

The funding is allocated through the Youth Development and Support Program, which funds community organisations to run a range of community-based small scale projects for the benefit of young people.

This funding is in addition to the $500,000 provided by the Australian Government to support 24 Youth Development and Support Program projects in 2009, which represented the diverse interests and circumstances experienced by young people.

There are 23 additional Projects.
